911 Outage, Inyo and Mono Counties

- On 01/06/16 at 1044 hours the California State Warning Center (CSWC) received a report indicating that there was a 911 outage affecting Inyo and Mono County Public Safety answering Points (PSAPs).
- The CSWC made contact with Mono County Warning Point (WP) via CALWAS, OASIS, and landline, but was unable to make positive contact with Inyo County WP. However, Cal OES Tcomm was able to reach Inyo County WP on OASIS.
- As of 0800 hours on 01/07/16 the Cal OES 911 Branch advised that the emergency maintenance work relating to the Mono and Inyo County outage was successfully completed early this morning. All temporary reroutes created as a result of this event have been removed and services are back to normal.

Proclamations

- Given the prolonged and continuing duration of the Aliso Canyon gas leak and at the request of residents and local officials, Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr. on 01/06/16, issued a proclamation that declares the situation an emergency and details the administration's ongoing efforts to help stop the leak. The order also directs further action to protect public health and safety, ensure accountability and strengthen oversight of gas storage facilities.

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

Key Points

01/07 – 01/13

Thursday-Friday

- Widespread mountain snow across the central and southern Sierra into Thursday morning. Some snow may linger through Thursday into the early hours of Friday morning over the mountains of southern CA.
- Valley locations will see rain. Areas of heavy rainfall can lead to localized urban flooding and flash flooding / debris flows from recent burn scars in particular over southern CA.
 - Several debris flows have emanated from burn scars in southern CA and more can be expected.
 - No mainstem flooding is expected
 - Minor flooding forecasted on Thursday for the San Diego River at Fashion Valley.
 - Low water crossing flooding and minor parking lot flooding.

Saturday-Sunday

- Another storm system will move through the State of CA on Saturday. It will contain less moisture. While there is uncertainty regarding this storm, snowfall and rainfall amounts look to be considerable less than the Thursday storm.

Monday-Wednesday

- No significant hazards expected

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

A series of offshore low pressure systems and frontal boundaries will produce periods of rain, high elevation snow, and gusty southerly winds through Saturday. Breaks in precipitation are expected this morning, Friday, and Sunday.

Medford Weather:

Precipitation has ended over most of extreme Northern California this morning as expected leaving residual low level cloudiness. Fog is also forming in many valley locations.

Reno Weather:

A broad area of low pressure continues to provide light snow showers across the Sierra. Accumulations have been generally less than an inch since last night. The best potential for snow showers will shift eastward out of California this afternoon.

San Francisco Weather:

Showers continue this morning but will decrease in coverage this afternoon. High pressure briefly builds tonight into Friday with only isolated showers and cool temperatures. Next front then arrives Friday night in the North Bay with rain returning and overspreading the rest of the Bay Area and Central Coast into Saturday morning. Showers end by Saturday afternoon with a brief return of dry weather Sunday. Next front arrives Monday with another chance of rain followed by another system currently timed to arrive next Wednesday.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

Lingering showers remain today with relatively dry conditions on Friday. More rain and mountain snow on Saturday. Brief break on Sunday then return to a wet pattern Monday through the middle of next week.

Hanford Weather:

Strong Pacific storm system will continue to bring rain and mountain snow to Central California through the remainder of tonight. A succession of storm systems tracking eastward from the Pacific will follow and bring wet weather at times to much of the Central California interior for the remainder of the week.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles weather:

Scattered showers and isolated thunderstorms will continue today. Friday will be dry, but another weaker front will bring light rain Saturday. The unsettled and cooler-than-normal weather will persist into next week.

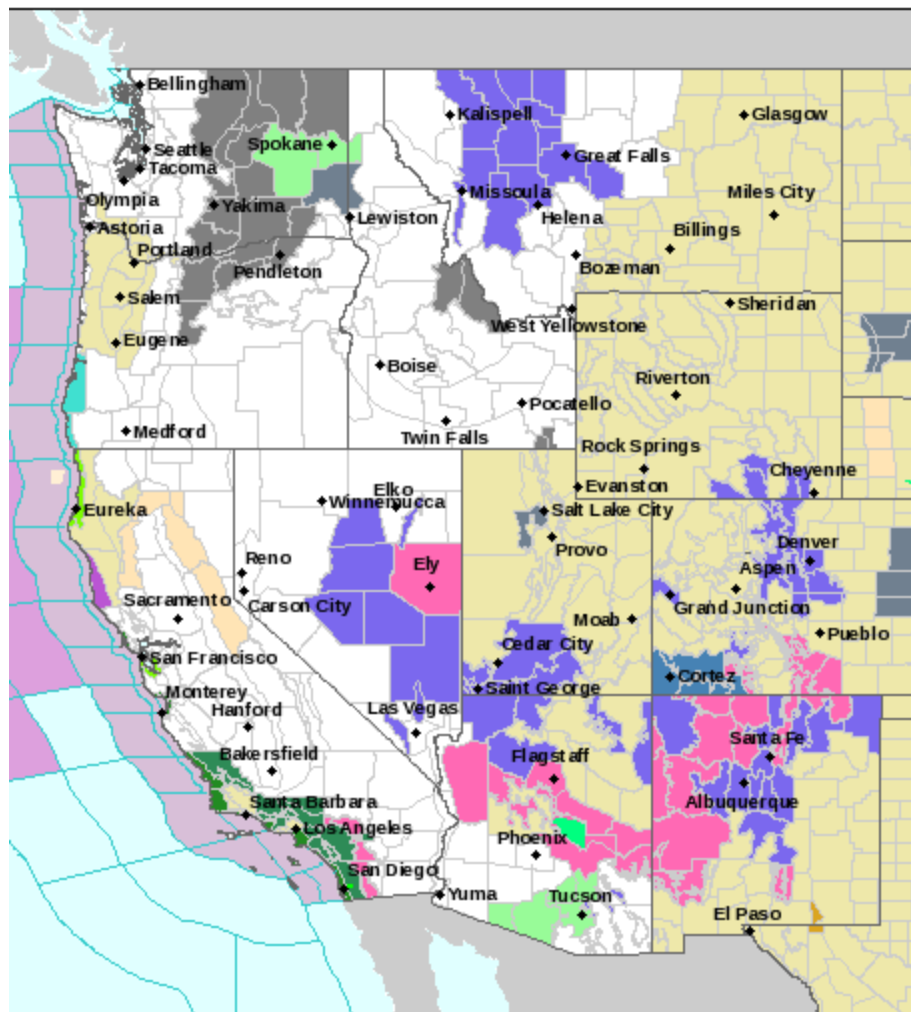

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

Showers will gradually decrease through Friday or early Saturday with weakening winds on Friday. Another low pressure system is expected to bring gusty winds and more precipitation for late Saturday into Sunday. Dry for Monday with small chances for precipitation on Tuesday from a weakening low pressure system to the north. More precipitation and gusty winds is possible for late Wednesday through early Thursday from yet another low pressure system.

Southeast California Weather:

The system will move out of the area tonight with another system bringing more unsettled weather conditions to Southeastern California over the weekend.
